DEAR PAW'S CORNER:
My new puppy's training is going very well, and he responds very well to rewards of little treats.
I worry about feeding
him so many processed,
store-bought snacks though. What are some natural or homemade alternatives for treats? - Maggie T., Nashua, N.H.

A: Many alternative recipes for homemade doggie treats are available on the internet and at the bookstore, but the healthiest ones share many common features. This means that you can find quite a few good recipes out there, or develop a few of your own.

Common ingredients in dog treats are meat protein (either from fresh meats, broths or strained baby foods), whole-grain flours (like wheat, oats, corn or rice), eggs and powdered supplements (like brewer's yeast or garlic). A variety of flavorings can be added, including peanut butter, sugar or molasses, vanilla, salt, and small amounts of cheese or milk. Dry or instant yeast can be added to biscuit-type recipes, to allow the dough to rise before baking.

A popular training asset is liver treats, which can be made fairly easy and which last about four to five days if stored properly (in an airtight container and refrigerated). Chicken livers, eggs and sweetener are pureed, flour

or cornmeal is mixed in (some owners add powdered supplements as well) and the mixture is baked, cooled and sliced
into bite-size treats.

Certain foods are never safe for dogs, so don't use any recipe that contains these ingredients: chocolate, onions, raisins/grapes or macadamia nuts. They seem like fairly innocent
foods, but can cause
serious health problems
in dogs.

Baking and testing
these snacks out on your puppy can be a lot of fun. Remember, you can also share recipes
with other dog owners
and perhaps find the perfect treat for your companion.

Rucking – The Unique Outdoor Exercise Which is Both Cardio and Resistance Training

When it comes to human beings, we tend to associate certain body types with certain professions or physical activities. Allow me to paint you a few mental pictures. If I say NFL lineman, NBA Center, or Sumo wrestler, you tend to think of much larger individuals. Conversely, if I mention a ballerina, jockey, or an Olympic gymnast, your mind immediately goes to someone much more petite. I can probably make you laugh if you think about the NBA Center and the jockey somehow switching places, so the 6'10" guy is riding in a competitive horse race and the 5' guy is trying to box out and grab rebounds "in the paint". I brought these examples up because I always wondered when I was growing up, "what is my body type good for?" Turns out God had a plan and I found my niche in my late teens, when I went off to college.

Anthropologists tell us some of the unique characteristics which delineate Homo sapiens (human beings) from other animal species are our abilities to use tools, create written languages, and surprisingly to carry objects on our backs. It permitted the earliest nomadic hunter-gathers to carry animal skins for clothing and bedding, primitive cookware, and the earliest tools/weapons from one location to another. I quickly learned when I became a Boy Scout in 1975 and completed my first 50-Miler Afoot, after monthly preparatory shorter backpacking trips to build up to it, I was blessed with the body type and ability to carry a load on my back significantly better than the average person. Now, this unique skill set, in most professions would only get a "so what?" However, I quickly learned as a Penn State freshman, when I enrolled in Army ROTC, that carrying a heavy load, significant distances, at a good pace is highly valued in the military. I became very proficient at roadmarching (as the Army calls it) with a minimum 35-lb. ruck at the end of the march, and routinely completed the Air Assault standard at the time (1986) of 10-miles in 2-hours and 20-minutes (14 min./mile) and the Expert Infantryman's Badge (EIB) standard of 12-miles in 3-hours (15-min./mile). I still regularly roadmarched up until my military retirement in 2013.

I don't know if you are aware of this, but there is a current fitness trend, which combines both cardio training and resistance/strength training. Typically, most people think of these as two separate training scenarios. Cardio means jumping on a treadmill or elliptical trainer inside or running, jogging, or walking outside, while resistance/strength training means hitting the weight machines, free weights, or resistance bands at home or in the gym. In the military, a backpack is called a rucksack, so this new physical fitness trend, which started with the military and is now becoming popular in the civilian sector is referred to as rucking. Who knew carrying a load on your back, while walking, has both cardio and resistance training benefits, and this "twofer" is getting more popular every day with people of all ages and ability levels?

Here are some of the physical benefits of rucking. It burns significantly more calories than just walking alone. Carrying 10% to 20% of your bodyweight will burn 2x to 3x more calories per mile, since the more weight you carry, the more calories you burn. If you're just starting out, men may want to begin with a 20-lb. ruck and women a 10-lb. ruck to get used to the weight and properly adjust the shoulder straps and waist band, but it will vary by individual as to what is comfortable. Rucking is a lot less stressful on the body and joints than running (studies show 70% less), so you can go out more often, longer, and with less potential consequences. As a weight-bearing exercise, it helps build bone density and strengthens joints and ligaments. Additionally, it helps build overall strength, since it is a full-body exercise working your legs, core, and back continuously. A side benefit is it helps improve posture and alignment as your body subconsciously adjusts to carry the load. Then there are the benefits helping your heart, since it is an all-around cardio exercise, which increases your heart rate, builds endurance, and reduces the risk of cardiovascular disease. Always consult your physician first, if just getting started on any new exercise routine.

Then there are the mental benefits, which include getting outdoors for sunlight exposure and stress reduction. It helps build resiliency and mental fortitude as you push forward to achieve a goal, whether that's 1-mile or more than 10-miles. Rucking provides time to clear your mind and think, possibly while exploring new trails. However, while it may be a solitary activity, it can also be shared with family and friends, since you can converse as you ruck. Carrying a ruck can also slow down a faster walker to walk at a slower person's pace and still get in a good workout. I just got an Army surplus MOLLE ruck to head out with. Maybe you'll want to try your luck with a ruck! God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors! ©WBB 2024

Our Daily Bread

Reserved For You
By Dave Branon

You greatly rejoice, though now for a little while, if need be, you have been grieved by various trials.
—1 Peter 1:6. Read: 1 Peter 1:3-9

Have you ever taken one of those vacations? You planned to arrive at a distant location where you knew you'd have a great time, but on the way you had so many traveling difficulties that you wondered if the journey was worth it.

Car problems. Traffic delays. Getting lost. Sick kids. Irritable fellow travelers. You knew the destination would be great, but the trip was anything but smooth. Yet you kept pressing on because you knew it would be worth the trouble.

That's a picture of the Christian life. Those who have trusted Jesus as Savior are on a journey filled with difficulties, setbacks, tragedies, and obstacles. Trouble always seems to be present or just around the corner. Yet we know that an indescribably great destination is in our future (1 Peter 1:4). And sometimes the assurance of what's reserved for us in heaven is all that keeps us going.

Peter understood. He said that as we make our way through life, we will suffer grief as a result of our troubles. Yet we can actually rejoice through our difficulties, because God has reserved something special for us at the end of the journey.

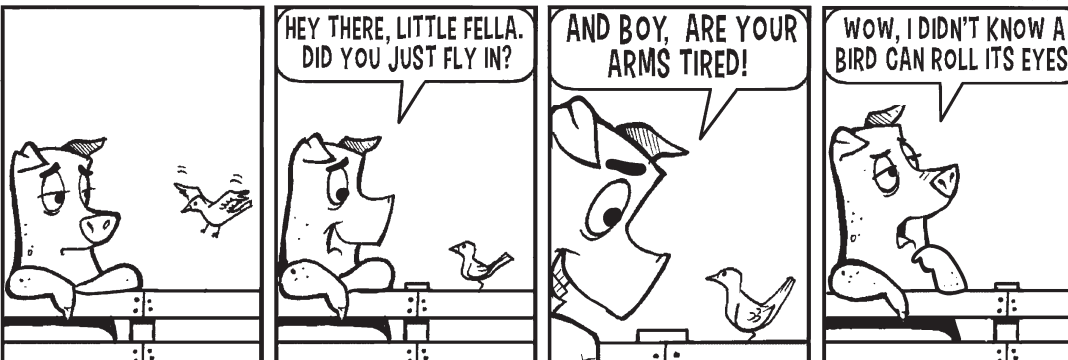

Troubled today? Look ahead.

Heaven will be worth the trip.

The gains of heaven will more than compensate us for the losses of earth.

Whip Up Cheese and Scallion Biscuits for St. Patrick's Day

Whenever I run into my Irish-American friend Margaret Wachholz, I feel like I've just won a ticket to the Emerald Isle. It's not just her catchy sayings and accent that inspire me; she simply exudes joy whenever I tell her about my attempts to be just a wee bit Irish, especially around St. Patrick's Day.

When I recently shared a favorite biscuit recipe made with cheddar cheese and scallions, which I thought might be ideal for a St. Patrick's Day dinner, she exclaimed, "Tis, indeed, but be sure to add lashings of butter! Irish butter."

Good thing, because this recipe calls for butter in the batter and for brushing on top of the warm biscuits – perfectly suited to accompany an Irish-themed meal on March 17.

This easy recipe skips mixers, kneading and biscuit cutters in the prep. Just set out a big bowl, grab a wooden spoon and call in the kids. They can measure and stir before you pop the doughy mounds in the oven. After it's done baking, they can brush the lightly browned tops with "lashings" of butter and top them with a shamrock-shaped flat parsley leaf as a nod to the "green."

CHEDDAR CHEESE AND SCALLION BISCUITS

- Makes 16 medium biscuits
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
 - 1 tablespoon baking powder
 - 1 tablespoon garlic powder
 - 1 tablespoon sugar
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup whole milk
 - 1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons unsalted melted butter (resources below)
 - 2 cups shredded mild cheddar cheese (look for Irish cheddar)
 - 2 teaspoons scallions, chopped
 - 1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
 - 16 whole leaves from flat leaf parsley for garnish (optional)

To prepare oven and baking pan: Heat oven to 450 F. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper.

To prepare dough: In a large mixing bowl, let your kids measure and combine flour, baking powder, garlic powder, sugar and salt. Stir with a big spoon. Add milk and 1/2 cup of melted butter. Combine lightly until flour is mixed in. Do not overstir; it will be sticky. Fold in the cheese, scallions and chopped parsley.

To bake: Use an ice-cream scoop or large spoon to drop equal-sized mounds on the baking sheet. Bake 12-14 minutes, until lightly browned.

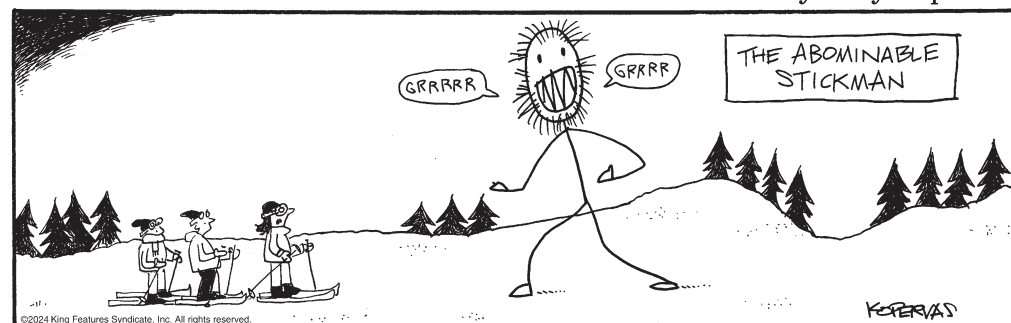

To serve: Remove from oven. Brush each biscuit with remaining 2 tablespoons melted butter and press a parsley leaf shaped like a shamrock on top.

Extra idea: If you have leftovers, warm them up in the morning for Sunday brunch to accompany an egg dish.

Now Here's A Tip

by JoAnn Derson

- If you make your own broth, you can freeze cubes in easy-to-measure amounts by using your muffin tin. Measure out broth in half cup or cup amounts, then freeze. When done, pop them out into a freezer-safe baggie.
- When putting in new plants, you can tear strips of tin foil, then use toothpicks or small stakes to pin them to the ground in your new garden. It will keep the cats out, and can even discourage birds. ©2024 King Features Synd., Inc.

Recipe Corner

Corned Beef and Cabbage

Laria Tabul
3 lb. corned beef brisket with spice packet
10 small red potatoes
5 medium carrots
1 large head cabbage

Place corned beef in a Dutch oven and cover with water. Add spice packet, cover, and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer until corned beef is just about fork-tender, about 2 hours. While corned beef is simmering, cut potatoes in half. Peel carrots and cut into 3" pieces. Cut cabbage into small wedges. When corned beef has cooked for 2 hours, add potatoes and carrots; cook until vegetables are almost tender and meat is fork-tender, about 10 minutes. Add cabbage and cook until tender, about 15 more minutes. Remove meat and let rest for 15 minutes. Leave broth and vegetables in the Dutch oven. Slice meat across the grain. Serve with vegetables and broth.

Strange But True by Lucie Winborne

- In a process called rice-fish culture, Indonesian farmers introduce fish into their rice fields so the fish droppings will act as fertilizer. In turn, the fish also eat harmful insects and improve oxygen circulation, increasing crop yields by up to 10%.

Kovels

Antiques and Collecting by Terry and Kim Kovel

Q: I have many Barbie dolls and collectibles, Ertl metal tractors that were my husband's and airplane banks that I'd like to sell. None of my great-grandchildren seem to be interested. Do you have a price list that tells what I might be able to sell them for?

A: Old toys sell at house sales, estate sales and garage sales. The price you can get depends on rarity and condition. Parents buy them for their children to play with and may even buy the toy if it's in worn "used" condition if the price is right. Adult collectors look for vintage Barbie dolls, banks and farm toys in good condition. Prices for toys are listed in our latest price book, Kovels' Antiques & Collectibles Price List 2023. You can also check online sources to see what toys like yours have sold for. Be sure to check "Sold" prices, not asking prices. Barbie dolls sell for $12 or less to a few hundred dollars or more. Barbie's clothing and accessories sell for a variety of prices. Ertl tractors in used condition sell for $25 or less. Some in good condition sell for $60 to a few hundred dollars. A 1920's aluminum "Spirit of Saving" airplane bank commemorating Lindbergh's flight sold for $480 recently. It was in near mint condition. ©2024 King Features Synd., Inc.

TIP: The longer the cylinder on an old music box, the higher the price.
