Our Daily Bread

The Unpayable Debt We Owe
 Read: Galatians 5:1-14
 "Stand fast therefore in the liberty by which Christ has made us free." —Galatians 5:1
 Our gratitude is deepened when we remember the price others paid to help obtain freedom. In the United States, one such person was Richard Stockton.

Stockton was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was a prominent lawyer and a wealthy landowner. Because he supported the war efforts, he and his family were driven from their home. That home was sacked and burned. Stockton was imprisoned for several years and subjected to harsh treatment that broke his health. He died a pauper at the age of 51. Yet few Americans remember this hero who paid such a high price for the cause of liberty. His sacrifice is largely forgotten.

Even more important, have we become so familiar with the gospel that we fail to appreciate what our salvation cost the Savior? We rejoice in the spiritual freedom we enjoy by faith in the sin-canceling death of Jesus, but do we realize at least to some small degree the price He paid?

Are we truly grateful to Jesus for all He sacrificed to set us free spiritually? If so, we are to "stand fast . . . in the liberty by which Christ has made us free" (Gal. 5:1). No matter what else may be demanding our attention, let's take time to remember the unpayable debt we owe Him. By Vernon C. Grounds

But drops of grief can ne'er repay The debt of love I owe: Here, Lord, I give myself away— 'Tis all that I can do! —Watts

Salvation is infinitely costly but absolutely free.

Just in Time for Easter Recipe Corner

12 slices day-old bread, cut into 1" cubes
2 (8 oz.) packages cream cheese, cut into 1" cubes
1 cup fresh blueberries
12 large eggs, beaten
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/3 cup maple syrup
Blueberry Sauce:
1 cup white sugar
1 cup water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup fresh blueberries
1 tablespoon butter

Overnight Blueberry French Toast Casserole

• Prepare casserole: Lightly grease a 9"x13" baking dish. Arrange 1/2 of the bread cubes in dish and top with cream cheese cubes. Sprinkle blueberries over cream cheese, then top with remaining bread cubes. Whisk eggs, milk, vanilla extract, and syrup together in a large bowl until well-combined; pour over bread cubes. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Remove casserole from refrigerator about 30 minutes before baking. Preheat oven to 350°. Bake casserole, covered, for 30 minutes. Uncover, and continue baking until center is firm and surface is lightly browned, about 25 to 30 minutes. Meanwhile, prepare blueberry sauce: Mix sugar, water, and cornstarch together in medium saucepan; bring to a boil and cook, stirring constantly, 3 to 4 minutes. Stir in blueberries, reduce heat to low, and simmer until blueberries burst, about 10 minutes. Stir in butter. Serve with warm syrup over top.

Overnight Slow Cooker Breakfast Casserole

12 large eggs
1 cup heavy cream (or half-and-half)
1 teaspoon onion powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
20 oz. package refrigerated hash brown potatoes
4 oz. shredded Parmesan cheese, divided
8 oz. shredded mozzarella cheese, divided
6 oz.-8 oz. package heat and eat sausage links, sliced into coins
1/2 cup chopped sun-dried tomatoes, divided
1/2 cup chopped fresh basil, divided
• Spray slow cooker with non-stick cooking spray. In medium bowl combine eggs and cream; whisk until well combined. Sprinkle onion powder, salt and both peppers over egg mixture while whisking. Whisk until completely combined. Set aside. In slow cooker, combine hash browns and about 1/2 of each of Parmesan cheese, mozzarella cheese, sausage, sun-dried tomatoes and basil. Using fingers, gently toss until combined. Pour egg mixture over top; if necessary use spatula to smooth out top. Set aside about 1/2 of remaining mozzarella cheese (approximately 2 ounces). Sprinkle remaining ingredients over top of casserole. Cover slow cooker and cook for 6-8 hours on low or until center is cooked through. A thermometer inserted into center should read 160°. Sprinkle casserole with remaining cheese, serve.

Kovels

Antiques and Collecting by Terry and Kim Kovel

Q: We have a set of 12 Lenox dinner plates, each depicting a different sailing ship. They are gold-rimmed and marked with the name of the ship and a description. Eight plates depict a Challenge Cup and year, and four are Cup Defenders. They have the Lenox mark and "J. McD. & S. Co." What is this mark? Are the plates valuable?

A: Sets of plates picturing yachts sailing in the America's Cup races were made by Lenox in different versions and sold by several companies in the 1930s. The mark with the initials on your plates was used by Jones, McDuffee & Stratton Co., a dealer and distributor in Boston that began working under that name in 1871. By 1910, it was the largest wholesaler and retailer of china and glassware in the U.S. The company sold commemorative plates for Lenox and other companies until about 1960. The signature can add value. Some sets have sold at auction for over $1,000. ©2024 King Features Synd., Inc.

Outdoor Opportunities

By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II
The Truth About Military Surplus Gear for Outdoor Excursions

It's simultaneously amazing and amusing how your brain just goes off on a tangent after you've had a particular thought. When I finished typing last week's column about Rucking and mentioned I had picked up an Army surplus MOLLE rucksack, my mind immediately went into overdrive regarding the amount of military surplus gear I've accumulated over the years for use during my many outdoor excursions. Now, I learned a long time ago to always have a pen and paper readily available, so I just started jotting down a rudimentary list of some of the military items I count amongst my kit. A quick list of a dozen clothing items includes: belts, boots, field jacket, gloves, hats, long underwear, mittens, neck gaiter, pants, scarf, shirts, and socks. Additionally, when it comes to gear, I could think of another dozen: canteens, cots, knives, poncho, rucksacks, sewing kit, sleeping bags, snowshoes, tanker bar, tire chains, tow straps, and a waterproof bag. Neither of these lists are all encompassing, but they did make me think, "After using it all of my adult lifetime, why do you have and use this large amount of military surplus gear?"

Well, in the spirit of true military nomenclature, I decided to create my own acronym to help explain my personal penchant for military surplus items. Using the word SURPLUS, I came up with: Seriously Utilitarian, Reasonably Priced, Long-lasting, Underappreciated Supplies. I'll be the first to admit military clothing and gear is considerably heavier than most of its lightweight civilian equivalents, but by design it is constructed to handle temperature extremes (arctic, desert, and everything in-between) and rough-handling (low-crawling, thrown in trucks, airborne operations and many more unforgiving circumstances) for extended periods of time without failing. The bottom line is its useful stuff for what you're probably going to be doing outdoors and if you're not going on an ultralight, multi-day, high-mileage backpacking trip, the weight factor probably isn't an issue. While the U.S. government most likely spent an excessive amount of money developing a piece of equipment to meet all its necessary extreme standards, you can probably get that same gear, when they are done using it, for a fraction of what Uncle Sam originally paid for it. Some of my surplus items, I've had for over 40-years and it's still performing in the field as strong and dependable as ever. Many military surplus items are not appreciated by those who've never been exposed to them for their value, both quality-wise and price-wise. I've seen a lot of lesser commercial camping gear end up in the trash after a weekend outing, either from material failure or user frustration.

Back in the day, starting with right after World War II, Army Navy Stores were common in most cities and larger towns for civilians to get their hands on military surplus items. In the past 20-years, a number of these long-existent Army Navy Stores have closed their doors, since they've had an increasingly difficult time acquiring genuine military surplus items, both from the U.S. military and foreign militaries, and the cheaper civilian knock-offs (often made in China), do not meet the same high-quality standards. Within a local 30-mile radius, the former Army Navy Stores in Boardman, Sharon, and Warren are no longer doing business. A considerable amount of my personal military surplus items came from my military service, since the general rule of thumb was anything that touched your skin you could keep, since it did not have to be turned back into the Supply Sergeant when you transferred units or ETS'ed.

Since my military retirement in February 2013, my primary "Go To" sources for military surplus items are both Pennsylvania-based companies. Coleman's Military Surplus LLC in Millersburg, PA is where I acquired several larger items, like my Modular Sleep System and snowshoes. They shuttered their retail location during the COVID-19 Pandemic, but their full line of authentic military surplus items is available online at colemans.com (Like me, you can sign up for their email list.) More recently, I have frequented Priority One Surplus in Hamburg, PA. It's in a plaza, just up the hill, from the largest Cabela's megastore in the U.S., along Interstate 78 between Harrisburg and Allentown (and only a 25-minute drive from my parents). If your future travel plans take you to Eastern PA, I recommend you consider stopping at Priority One. Their store is configured like a military supply room and their staff are primarily veterans. I picked up my MOLLE rucksack for $30.00 and my favorite Gortex bivy sack (a waterproof cocoon) for $20.00 there. Their website is: priorityonesurplus.com and they too have an email list you can sign up for.

Our military deserves the best clothing/equipment to complete their mission. When they no longer need it, that military surplus can be your best choice outdoors! God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors! ©WBB 2024
