Paws Corner

by Sam Mazzotta

DEAR PAW'S CORNER:

After taking my Terrier "Hank" for a walk around my subdivision yesterday, I noticed when taking off his leash that a tick had attached itself to the back of his neck! I don't even know where it came from; we stayed on the sidewalk. I quickly tried to remove it with tweezers, but Hank is kind of a wiggly guy, and just as I tugged on the tick, he moved and the body of the tick broke off! It looks like the tick's head is still embedded in his skin. What can I do? Will this hurt Hank? -- Joe K. in Sarasota Springs, NY

DEAR JOE: Since the tick's body was removed, and you noticed it pretty quickly, Hank's risk of contracting a tick-borne illness is low.

However, an infection might develop where the tick's head is still embedded.

Treat the bite spot with an over-the-counter antibiotic ointment. Monitor the spot for a few days. There may be a little redness around the bite area as the skin reacts to the foreign object, and with luck, the head may be pushed out enough for you to grab it with the tweezers and remove.

When should you contact Hank's veterinarian? If you aren't able to remove the tick head after a few days, it's time to make an appointment with the vet. Or, if the redness spreads or if Hank seems distressed, lethargic or otherwise out of sorts, get him to the vet right away.

Removing a tick as soon as it's found is important, because even though dogs can be vaccinated against Lyme Disease, other tick-borne diseases can be transmitted to your pet. Ticks are becoming active earlier in the year, so consider starting flea and tick prevention earlier, too.

Strange But True by Lucie Winborne

- Scientists investigating the occasional appearance of thousands of dead fish on the banks of an African river eventually discovered that the cause was huge numbers of hippos pooping in the water.
- Eric Money is the only NBA player to officially score for both teams in the same game.
- Actor Danny DeVito used to be a beautician.
- President Thomas Jefferson hated formal affairs so much that he would often greet foreign dignitaries in his pajamas. ©2024 King Features Synd., nc.

Strange But True by Lucie Winborne

• For 200 years tomatoes were considered poisonous in Europe. In reality, their acidity was dissolving poisonous metals like lead from plates.
• It is impossible for a human to sneeze during sleep due to a bodily state called REM atonia.
• Freelance diamond setter Raffi Stepanian found he could collect enough bits of carelessly dropped diamonds, rubies, platinum and gold on the sidewalks of New York City's Midtown Diamond District to earn a living. ©2024 King Features Synd., Inc.

USACE: One of Their Missions is Managing High Water to Keep Us All Safe

Never underestimate the sheer power and potential to do harm of high water! For over two weeks now, we have had a front row seat, here at our home, of the excessive volume of muddy water flowing down the Shenango River as it stretches well above and beyond its banks, only a mere 100 yards from our front door. First, there was the stretch of perpetual rain from April 3-5 that severely impacted our April 6 trout season opener. Just when we thought our waterways might have started to recede, a second string of days producing rain, April 10-12, fell on already saturated ground and caused flood waters to once again cause road closures, limited evacuations, and other negative consequences. We've experienced areal flooding, which is waterways across the multiple watersheds comprising the Ohio River Drainage all flooding simultaneously, due to the cumulative magnitude of multiple inches of widespread rain all trying to move downstream as quickly as possible. On a regional level, Pittsburgh's Point State Park fountain flooded for the first-time since 2008 and 26 barges tore lose to begin a wild ride down the Ohio River, resulting in one hitting the Sewickley Bridge and several going over the Emsworth Dam. Regardless, whether it is a small stream or major river, when flooding impacts you personally, it's a significant life-changing event.

I know from personal experience. When Hurricane Agnes stalled over Pennsylvania in June 1972 and dumped double-digit rainfall across the entire Susquehanna River Drainage, the extensive flooding devastated the Wyoming Valley (Wilkes-Barre) only 25-minutes from our home at the time and completely wiped out several cabins on our family property 8-miles upstream from Harrisburg. Hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvanians were impacted by the unprecedented high water, including the PA Governor's Mansion on Front Street in Harrisburg and my maternal grandparents' home in Lewistown, which while over 600-yards from the Juniata River, still endured 8-feet of water filling the first floor. Nine year-old me still remembers the sights, smells, and mess after the extensive flooding and watching my grandparents and tens of thousands like them, toil to rebuild their lives and properties afterward.

Did you know Pennsylvania is the most flood-prone state in the entire United States? Our topography results in both localized flash-flooding and widespread areal flooding more often than anywhere else. As you travel along or on our waterways, both big and small, take notice where the debris and mudlines indicate the water has been in the past, frequently in the not too distant past, and remember it can get to that point again and possibly further in a relatively short amount of time in the future. Knowing PA's flood propensity and remembering my personal experience is one reason I embraced my responsibilities for 23-years as a full-time member of the PA Army National Guard to respond to flooding emergencies with our available resources to help save lives and mitigate damages for our fellow PA neighbors.

For outdoorsmen, women, and children, one category of treasured public lands spread throughout Western PA are U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) Projects. These waterways are highly-valued as fishing spots, while their accompanying lands are often destinations for hiking or hunting. However, the real reason for their existence is as flood-control projects. After the widespread Spring-flooding of 1936, which severely impacted New Castle, Sharon, Pittsburgh, and numerous other cities and towns across PA and other Eastern States, Congress passed the Flood Control Act of 1938. This authorized USACE to be the lead in the construction of dams and levees on waterways to prevent future devastating flooding as much as possible. I'm sure you are familiar with many of these 16 impoundments, owned and operated by the USACE-Pittsburgh District, which play a significant role in keeping us all safe. Shenango River Lake in Mercer County (completed 1965), Kinzua Dam/Allegheny Reservoir in Warren County (1965), Tionesta Lake in Forest County (1940), Crooked Creek Lake in Armstrong County (1940), and Woodcock Creek Dam in Crawford County (1973) are some of these impoundments, where the USACE coordinates the containment of water within and release from to mitigate downstream flooding as much as possible. Each of these impoundments have mitigated multi-millions of dollars-worth of damages since their construction (cumulatively billions) and the savings have far exceeded their cost of construction.

Without USACE impoundments doing their jobs to mitigate the amount of runoff rushing downstream, we would have even more flooding after torrential rains. So, please value USACE projects as recreational resources and also as flood control engineering wonders! God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors! ©WBB 2024

- To get shower doors squeaky clean, use a paste of baking soda and water to scrub stubborn water stains, then rinse the whole thing with straight white vinegar. Put the vinegar in a spray bottle and spray well, then rub off with a sponge. Rinse with plain water.
- For even distribution in sowing seeds for your garden, use a saltshaker for tiny seeds. You can get a cheese shaker for larger seeds, if necessary. ©2024 King Features Synd., Inc.

Getting Along Read: Psalm 133

Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! —Psalm 133:1

I can still remember what it was like to take our family on vacation, only to have the kids in the backseat mar the joy of it all by their bickering and complaining. Who doesn't remember the disruptive effects of "Dad, she touched me!" or "Mom, he won't give me a turn!"

If you've had that kind of experience, you can imagine how God feels when His children quarrel and complain. Getting along is important to God. Jesus prayed that we would "be one" so that the world would believe He came from the Father (John 17:20-21). And to disciples who were prone to quarreling, He commanded that they love and serve one another (13:34-35; Matt. 20:20-28). It should also be noted that among the seven things God hates, He includes "one who sows discord among brethren" (Prov. 6:19).

So I'm not surprised that the psalmist tells us that when brothers dwell in unity, it's like "the precious oil upon the head, running down on . . . the beard of Aaron, running down on the edge of his garments" (Ps. 133:1-2). In ancient times, the oil of anointing was full of fragrant spices that graced the environment wherever the anointed one went. May the unity that comes from our love and service to one another fragrantly grace our families, churches, and friendships!

When love and kindness rule our lives,
And we are seen as one, The fragrance of our unity Has no comparison. —Sper Christians who get along with each other spread the sweet aroma of Jesus.

Honey Glazed Chicken

by J. Brink

1/4 cup honey
2 Tbsp. soy sauce
1/8 tsp. red pepper flakes
1 1/2 Tbsp. olive oil
2 skinless, boneless chicken breast halves, cut into bite-size pieces
•Whisk honey, soy sauce, and red pepper flakes in bowl; set aside. Heat olive oil in skillet over medium heat; cook and stir chicken in hot oil until lightly brown, about 5 minutes. Pour honey mixture into skillet; continue to cook and stir until chicken is no longer pink in the center and sauce is thickened, about 5 minutes more. Serve hot and enjoy!

Kovels

Antiques and Collecting by Terry and Kim Kovel

Q: You had an article about a "Back to the Future" VHS tape selling for thousands of dollars. What auction houses or other outlets might be interested in buying or selling VHS tapes or LPs?

A: The VHS tape that sold for a record $75,000 was a sealed copy of the original 1985 film from a collection owned by Tom Wilson, who played "Biff" in the film. Factors contributing to the high price include the popularity of the film and the actor who owned the tape. Desirability, rarity and condition determine price. An unopened or sealed copy is more valuable than a used copy. Most VHS tapes sell for less than $10. Vinyl records have become popular again. Many are worth less than a dollar, but sought-after albums, including those from the 1960s and '70s, are worth more. You can find prices online for both VHS tapes and LPs by searching sites like valueyourmusic.com or discogs.com. Look for "sold" prices on eBay. There are stores that buy and sell old VHS tapes and LPs. They can tell you which ones are worth more than a few dollars. They'll give you about half what they expect to sell them for.

TIP: The best way to store plates is vertically in a rack. If you don't have space, store them with pads between the dishes.
