The Garden Bug
 Soil with a pH level above 7 is alkaline, and less than 7 is acidic (7 is "neutral"). Plants that like acidic soil include azaleas, rhododendrons, hydrangea, gardenias, camellias, holly shrubs, crepe myrtles, calla lilies and pine trees. To increase the acidity of your soil, mix ground rock sulphur into it, using 1.2 oz. per square yard for sandy soils and 3.6 oz. per square yard for all other soils. You can also add sawdust, composted leaves and peat moss to lower the soil pH. - Brenda Weaver

 The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

• In the hit film "Back to the Future," the time machine was originally an old fridge. According to HuffPost, "Ultimately, it was determined that it probably was not a good idea to use a refrigerator in such a manner as kids might want to reenact the scene."
• While they might look the same, Jenga blocks have subtle differences in dimensions to make their construction less stable. Each brick is a different size and weight, so no two games are alike.

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: I don't know how it happened, because I check and trim my cat's nails regularly. Today, "Sparks" cried out in pain when I checked his right paw, and that's when, on closer inspection, I saw that one of the middle claws had grown around, down and into the pad of his paw! How did I miss it? And what can I do to fix this? – Sharon in Bennington, Vermont

DEAR SHARON: Cats are very good at hiding illness and injury. Plus, some cats have longer tufts of fur growing between their claws, and this can obscure nail problems. Add that to the routine struggle of trimming a cat's nails while they wriggle and nip at you to try and escape, and it's surprisingly easy to miss a claw or two.

Have a partner help you by gently holding your cat in a comfortable position while you inspect his paw more closely. Use a magnifying glass to get a better look at the ingrown claw.

If the claw has not penetrated the skin of your cat's pad – it may be pushing against the skin – you should be able to safely trim the nail away from the pad. Use sturdy nail nippers made for cats, and trim only a small part of the nail – enough to release the pressure on the pad. Revisit the nail in two days to trim it back further, and monitor closely from now on.

However, if the claw has penetrated the skin, removing it can be painful and stressful for your cat. Make an appointment with the veterinarian, who will be able to numb the area slightly, trim the claw, and remove the part remaining in the pad while preventing infection. ©2024 King Features Synd., Inc.

Strange But True by Lucie Winborne

- Up until the beginning of the 19th century, models were not used to showcase clothes. Fashion companies would use dolls instead.
- To ensure Queen Elizabeth II received her food on time, clocks in the royal kitchen at Windsor Castle were set five minutes ahead.
- In 2009, a team of scientists searched Scotland's Loch Ness for evidence of Nessie. While the fabled monster remained elusive, they at least recovered more than 100,000 golf balls. ©2024 King Features Synd., Inc.

Kovels

Antiques and Collecting by Terry and Kim Kovel

Q: I have a question on this coffee set, which belonged to my grandmother (born 1884). I am confused because this set has four larger serving pieces (coffee pourer, creamer, sugar and ?). All of these items have the Ceramic Art mark (per your guide, says Belleek, 1906-1924). The set also has six cups and saucers, which are marked "J.P.L France" (Again, per your guide, 1842-1898). The pattern of all, however, appears to be identical to me, and I haven't been able to find it anywhere.
A: That is an interesting question; you don't often see a complete set of dishes with marks from different makers. The J.P.L. mark was used in Limoges, France, from the late 1800s to about 1932. It is unlikely that Ceramic Art and Limoges made the same pattern, but they did have something in common: they both made blanks to be decorated at other factories or by hobbyists at home. This may be the case for your coffee set. Professional decorators would sign the pieces they painted, usually with their initials. If yours aren't signed, they may have been decorated by an amateur, making your set truly one of a kind.

TIP: If you have valuable old glass, it should be stored or displayed where there is some air movement to dry off the surface. Glass bottles and containers should be stored with the lids and stoppers open. ©2024 King Features Synd., Inc.

Our Daily Bread

Blue-Ribbon
Christians

*He knows the way that I take; when He has tested me, I shall come forth as gold. —
Job 23:10*

Read: Hebrews 12:1-29

While visiting New England, I was presented with a tin of pure Vermont maple syrup. It was given to me by a man who consistently had won blue ribbons for his product.

Producing syrup of that quality is no easy task. Its richness, flavor, and color depend on many factors: the tree from which the sap is drawn, the time it is collected, the existing weather conditions, and the skill of the one who controls the boiling and filtering process. A blue-ribbon award is the result of a carefully controlled procedure from start to finish.

This reminds me of the way the Lord refines the lives of His children. Even now, He is working on us. The fires of affliction and trial may be painful for a time, but afterward they will result in great blessing and reward (Hebrews 12:11).

I remember well when my brother and I collected some sap from our maple trees in the back yard. We put it in a big tub on a burner in the basement, and then promptly forgot all about it. Many hours later Mother almost fainted when she opened the basement door and was greeted by billowing clouds of smoke. How thankful we can be that God never forgets us in that way. He knows just the right amount of heat necessary to make us blue-ribbon Christians!

All God's testings have a purpose—
Someday you will see the light;
All He asks is that you trust Him,
Walk by faith and not by sight. —Zoller
God sends trials not to impair us but to improve us.

Outdoor Opportunities

By COL (Ret.) Grey D. Berrier II

Whatever You Choose to Pursue Outdoors,
There is a Pack for That!

I've always been somewhat of an eclectic reader. When I'm looking at the newsfeed on my smartphone, I'll regularly read things that pique my interest for any reason. Recently, I came across a story addressing Anthropology and some of the earliest technological developments attributed to mankind. I'm sure you could guess a few of them, because they came to my mind too. There was obviously the ability to start a fire, along with the discovery of the wheel for transportation. Along the lines of intellectual innovations, they listed a written alphabet, in addition to graphic illustrations (i.e. cave drawings). The one that hit close to home and I had never previously considered was the pack or bundle as a mean of moving items from one location to another. Our earliest ancestors probably initially used animal skins to carry cutting tools (early stone knives and axes), fire-starting materials, cookware, bedding (most likely other animal skins), food items, and possibly water as they lived a primitive nomadic existence as hunters and gathers.

Today we often take packs for granted. But, when you think about it, they are very common pieces of gear, and thus we have many different names for them. We have backpacks, knapsacks, rucksacks, kit bags, daypacks, pack-sacks, haversacks, satchels, sling bags, book bags, carry-ons, shoulder bags, fanny packs, butt packs, waist packs, dry bags, range bags, and duffle bags. Packs come in all sorts of colors and sizes (frequently measured in liters as a unit of volume). If you have a favorite outdoor pursuit, there is probably a specialty pack for your activity. There are a myriad of packs made for hunters in a wide variety of camouflage patterns and they even get more specific depending upon whether you are afield with a firearm, crossbow, compound bow, or a recurve/longbow. Fishing packs are similarly specialized for fly fishermen, lure fishermen, bait fishermen, and even saltwater fishermen with their oversized gear. Then you get into specialty bags for canoeing, picnicking, photography, shooting, first aid, trapping (pack baskets), biking (panniers), horseback riding (saddlebags), mountain climbing, and the list could go on.

Probably, the four most common areas of human activity where you will observe individuals carrying a load on their back in some form of pack are: (1) students with their books and other educational materials; (2) day hikers with those items they need for a comfortable day outdoors and most likely a few extra items in case of emergency; (3) backpackers with everything they require to sustain themselves (food, clothing, and shelter) for multiple days afield; and (4) military service members with all the tactical and sustainment gear they need to complete their mission. I have been a member of all four categories at one point or another in my life and in the latter two, backpacker and soldier, your pack becomes your "home away from home" with everything you need to battle the elements and continue moving on successfully.

A good rule of thumb when you initially start heading afield with a pack on your back is to not exceed one tenth of your body weight. With a little experience and conditioning, that can increase to one sixth of your body weight for a multiple day excursion. So, for a 150-lb. individual, this means day hikes should be limited to 15-lbs. as you become accustomed to having a load on your shoulders and 25-lbs. will be the recommended limit when you start out on multi-night backpacking trips. Parents need to be cautious with their children and the amount of weight they are carrying in their book bags to, from, and around school. I can recall my own children when they weighed only 60 lbs. definitely shouldering loads above 10 lbs. (which clearly exceeded one sixth of their body weight) when it came to all the books and other materials they lugged around. I know there are military veterans and current service members reading this who wish the load they routinely shouldered was only one-sixth of their body weight. In the military, based on the mission and environmental conditions, it's not uncommon to be carrying one-quarter, to as much as one-half, of your own body weight on your back. While day packs frequently only have shoulder straps, any pack used for heavier loads and longer outings should definitely have a waist strap, since a properly fitted backpack should comfortably transfer 80% of the weight to your hips and lower body and 20% to the front of your shoulders. (The goal is put Zero percent of the weight on the top of your shoulders.)

In the 1990's, the military came out with the MOLLE (pronounced Molly) system. The Modular Lightweight Load-carrying Equipment system has external webbing to permit users to attach a wide variety of external pouches and accessories to their pack. It is now the standard for civilian packs as well.

The pack you carry afield is a key decision. Choose wisely! God Bless, Be Safe, and Great Outdoors!

• "To clean the TV remote in my home, I dip a cotton swab into rubbing alcohol, shake off any excess and use it to gently clean the surface. I do this weekly during cold and flu season." – M. in Minnesota

• When working with juicy items (lemons, watermelon, etc.) on a cutting board, try placing the board on a kitchen towel. When the juices run over the edge, they will be caught by the towel. Cleanup will be easy!
